LEADERSHIP CENTER

Over the past 30 years, women have been struggling to establish themselves with undervalued skills in workplaces that have been mostly male dominated. This dynamic is shifting.

Women have used their female energy and natural habits of reassurance, listening, supporting, sharing emotional experiences, to bring out the best in others. These were once irreplaceable skills in the lower levels of a company in the past, but today are being sought throughout all levels in the quest to balance rewarding communication and emotional intelligence.

How would it change your current workplace culture if all of the interactions were positive, productive and profitable? In this workshop, participants learn the fundamental elements of building positive rapport and strong relationships with others.

Learn concepts of:

- Leading Ourselves
 - Taking full responsibility
 - Discovering what we want
 - Balancing Work and Life
- Relating to Others
 - Personality Styles
 - Importance of Listening
 - The Power of Praise, Recognition and Acknowledgement

Relationships are the key to success in any business, and recognizing what customers and clients value most helps build a solid foundation for strong interpersonal relationships, creating win/win opportunities for individuals and the organizations they represent.

This interactive program will help women advance their strategy toward strong and prosperous relationships with themselves and their team members. Create a positive corporate culture, engage employees and earn long term customer loyalty with the heart of women in workplace relationships.
